From the Brussels Gazette, dated Oct. 31.

Naples, September 30.

THE 19th day of this Month, being the Festival of St. Januarius, Protector of this City, it was celebrated with the usual Solemnity: And some of the Blood of that Saint, which at other times is dry and hard like a Cake, being placed near his Head; the People to their great Consolation saw the Blood turn liquid, (and so it continued during the Octaves of his Festival,) that Miracle always betokening Prosperity to the Kingdom. The 27th an Assassin who had kill'd a Merchant nam'd Antonio Romano, and afterwards falsely accus'd another of committing the Fact, was hang'd here. The six Gallies of the Squadron belonging to this Kingdom, which lately took a rich Dutch Merchant Ship in the Adriatick, have pass'd by Otranto, and 'tis expected they will arrive speedily in our Port. We had a strong Report here for some days past, that there was an Insurrection at Palermo in Sicily, but we are now certainly inform'd, that all is quiet there; and that what gave occasion to the Report we have mention'd, was the apprehending and imprisoning of some Persons disaffected to the present Government, who had taken the Liberty to talk seditiously and scurrilously of the two Crowns. The Countess of St. Estevan de Gormez, Daughter-in-Law to our Viceroy, was brought to Bed of a Son a few days ago. Some Privateers of Segna, appear'd lately off Monte St. Angelo, and made an Attempt to seize in the Port of Manfredonia and carry off a Neapolitan Tartan laden with Oyl; but the Cannon of that Castle sunk one of their Ships, and made the rest retire.

Falmouth, Nov. 6. This day sail'd to the Eastward a Dutch Man of War of 44 Guns, and a Dutch Privateer of 26 Guns, bound for Holland, having under their Convoy 7 Prizes for Flushing, taken in their way home from Martineco and St. Domingo, and 6 Doggers, last from Ireland. Sail'd with them also, 10 Sail of Coasters for Plymouth and other Ports to the Eastward.

Plymouth, Nov. 7. This day sail'd Her Majesty's Ship the Revenge for Spithead. This day arriv'd Her Majesty's Ship the Looe, in 5 Weeks and 2 days from Newfoundland; she came thence with 13 Sail of Merchant Ships under her Convoy, but was parted from them 10 days ago in stormy Weather. This Evening sail'd Her Majesty's Ships the Hazardous and Leftoff for the Downes, and under their Convoy the William and Shepherd of and for London from Lisbon, John Beach Master; The May-flower William Mills, and the Edward and Sarah, Henry Moore, Masters, both with Merchant Goods from hence for London. And also the Hurdis Galley (a Prize brought into this Port,) for London.

Shields, Nov. 7. Within a few day several light Colliers arriv'd under Convoy of Her Majesty's Ship the Kinfale, which is since sail'd for Scotland to fetch a Ship that is in Leith Road and that came from Russia, her Name is the Sea Adventure, William Godley Master. This Morning a Fleet of laden Colliers made ready to sail, the Wind being fair; but there was such a Swell upon the Bar, that they durst not venture out. If the Wind continue fair, 'tis like they will sail tomorrow Morning.

Yarmouth, Nov. 8. Yesterday came into these Roads about 30 Sail of laden Colliers without Convoy. One Vessel that came in their Company, a Pink, Henry Moor Master, of Stockden, struck on a Sand off Hasborough and sunk, the Master and all the Men were sav'd. Yesterday sail'd the Assistance of Hamburg: So now there remain in our Roads the Solebay and Sorlings; which are to sail tomorrow or Friday with our Vessels bound for Holland under their Convoy, being 14 Sail. The Ormond Galley, Captain Smith, and the Betty Galley Captain Wotton, Commanders, sail'd yesterday laden with Herrings, &c. for the Streights.

Bristol, Nov. 8. This Afternoon arriv'd a French Ship of 200 Tons, laden with Fish and Oyl, bound home from Newfoundland; she was taken by the Grayhound Galley of this Port, Captain Triggs Commander; but where we cannot yet learn.

Harwich, Nov. 9. Yesterday a Fishing-Hoy laden with Codfish, bound for the River, was lost upon the Spits; but the Men were all sav'd and brought hither by a Smack of this Place. The Dolphin Pacquet-Boat is sail'd with a Mail for Holland.
